Editor Medical Brief: --The familiar, conversational style of the Brief suits me. I like its short and sharp articles, always to the point. I have several bound volumes and find them quite an encyclopedia. I wish to report my experience with some of the new ideas received from the Brief. About a year ago Dr. M. Milton, of Bradford, Pa. , called the attention of the profession to the value of powdered extract of gulf weed in the reduction of corpulence or excessive accumulation of fat. I could not find the remedy in the drug stores or mentioned in druggists circulars. I believe it is a French preparation, recently introduced into this country. I wrote to Dr. Milton, who indicated the source of supply. The price is high, about five dollars per lb. , but the dose is small. I usually prescribe five grains every two hours, but...
