Montgomery Blair: Postmaster General, on the Revolutionary Schemes of the Ultra Abolitionists, and in Defence of the Policy of the President Delivered at the Unconditional Union Meeting, Held at Rockville, Montgomery Co., Maryland, on Saturday, October 3, 1863 At the Unconditional Union Meeting held at Rockville, Montgomery County, Maryland, on Saturday, 3d October, 1863, the subjoined speech was delivered by Hon. Montgomery Blair, Postmaster General, in defence of the policy of the President of the United States, and in opposition to the efforts of the ultra Abolitionists to blot out the Southern States and receive them back only as Territories of the Union. Fellow-Citizens: I congratulate you on the hopes justly inspired by the circumstances under which we meet to-day. The progress of our arms gives us good reason for believing that peace will soon be restored to our county, and that when it comes it will be an enduring peace, because obtained by preserving the integrity of the Government, and because it will be followed by the early suppression from our system of the institution of domestic slavery, which occasioned most of the difficulty in the founding of the Government, and has been the only cause which ever seriously endangered its existence. But, even whilst we are indulging these well-founded hopes that our country is saved from destruction by the rebellion, we are menaced by the ambition of the ultra-Abolitionists, which is equally despotic in its tendencies, and which, if successful, could not fail to be alike fatal to republican institutions.
